Bill and I just spoke with Ali Freidman with NBC Montana about CFAC. It went really well. She mentioned that she had talked to the Governor's office as well.

Her main question was whether or not Glencore had any other options or choices now. Bill explained that the NPL listing process is a public process that will be open for public comment. He talked about the proposal for listing being as early as March/April and if not, then September/October (2x per year listing in the Federal Registry), then it would go out for public comment. At that time, Glencore/CFAC will have the opportunity to provide additional information and submit comments.

We did have the opportunity to reiterate that initially Glencore said that they wanted to move the cleanup along faster, etc., and that the State/DEQ offered up negotiating an AOC. Bill explained that we need to make sure that the cleanup is done correctly, done so that it is protective, etc., and that DEQ must retain certain authorities in order to ensure it is done right. He said that they were not in agreement with that and thus negotiations ceased.

She asked if anything was being done now, and I told her that right now there are no activities taking place in regards to the NPL listing, but DEQ continues to work with EPA to determine if further sampling or other interim activities need to occur.
